SUPPLEMENTAL STATEMENT TO 4. Statement page 2

The reason why the U.S. national phase was not entered in due time was due to an unintentional error by the British patent firm handling the PCT application. This error arose because of a docketing error caused by the Technical Assistant handling the case wrongly believing that the December 4, 2005 deadline was for filing a Chapter II Demand rather than the National Phase filing, the United Kingdom having a 31 month filing window.. Upon determining the filing error the application was immediately sent by facsimile to the US. associate with instructions to promptly file the case as quickly as possible. The applicant has always intended to file an application in the U.S. and the delay was unintentional. Once the error was uncovered., the applicant moved forward with due diligence.
